Cloudcast Media Adds To Military Podcast Programming With Production Deal For “Rally Point Actual”

New monthly transition podcast helps enlisted service members move from military to civilian life

SAN DIEGO – August 31, 2026: Cloudcast Media, the national leader in local podcasting, with content available in more than 100 U.S. cities, today announced a production deal for “Rally Point Actual,” a new podcast created by active duty service members Nicholas Rinell and Tommy Hendler to help with the transition from military to civilian life. The show joins Cloudcast’s MilitaryCAST.TV platform.

Rinell and Hendler are joined by associate producer Loren Rovere, who brings more than a decade of higher-education and military-engagement experience and has advised a Student Veterans of America chapter since 2022. The three have worked together since 2023.

“Rally Point Actual” is the transition podcast for enlisted service members leaving active duty. Each month, Rinell and Hendler, who have counseled thousands of service members through the move to civilian life, break down one part of the transition, from benefits, career, and education to mindset and the topics nobody briefs you on, and point listeners to the resources that can help. The first episode debuts Monday, September 7.

“We love the military, and ‘Rally Point Actual’ is a great collaboration for our MilitaryCAST.TV platform,” said Charles Parisi, CEO of Cloudcast Media. “We already produce ‘Mission: San Diego Military’ with American Military University as the sponsor, we’re developing ‘SheEO: Military,’ we helped launch ‘Your Next Mission’ with the American Freedom Foundation, and now we get to work with Nick and Tommy.”

“Every year, thousands of service members take off the uniform, and the guidance they get is too often scattered, dated, or buried in acronyms,” said Tommy Hendler, co-creator and co-host of “Rally Point Actual.” “We’ve spent years counseling people through this move one conversation at a time. This show lets us put that conversation on a mic so that every E-1 through E-9 making the leap has practical, honest advice and knows they don’t have to navigate it alone.”

“You earned the transition, and you deserve to get it right,” said Nicholas Rinell, co-creator and co-host of “Rally Point Actual.” “The skills, discipline, and leadership service members bring are exactly what civilian employers and communities need, but the path from here to there isn’t always clear. We’re bringing in guests who have made the journey and the organizations that support it, so listeners walk away knowing their next move.”

“Rally Point Actual” will be available on Apple Podcasts, Spotify, iHeartRadio, and at rpapodcast.com.

“Rally Point Actual” is an independent production and is not affiliated with the U.S. Army, the Department of War, or any other government organization. The views expressed are those of the hosts and guests.
